World Future Depends on Collaboration of Big Three

Analysis of the News by Mackenzie

Editorial Comment Written Today and Moved by Telegraph or Cable.

Associated Press War Analyst

It's becoming more apparent daily that the immediate future of the world depends chiefly on collaboration among the big three America, Russia and Britain.

The essence of this fact was emphasized by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in his report to the House of Commons on the tri-partite conference at Moscow. After stressing the good-will and confidence established, he said:

"The truth must be faced that it is on the part of these three powers principally that will lie the responsibility for insuring that this war be followed by lasting peace. If they could agree together there is no point that is not capable of final solution. If they do not agree together there is no international event which could not become an international disaster."

This is so because, to put it bluntly, these three powers represent an all-round strength which is capable of enforcing their United Nations' peace-time positions and their resources make this certain. This may change in the course of time, but that's the way it is now.

If this seems like exaggeration, just stop and check the global setup. Before this war the great powers of Europe were Russia, Germany, France, Italy and Britain. France and Italy are down and out physically if not in spirit. Italy bids fair to share the fate of the first class powers altogether, and poor France will retain it in name only for long years to come. Germany's fate remains to be seen, but the Reich most certainly will be rendered impotent to make war, and may even be split up into more than one independent states.

Out in the orient the Japanese ability to make war is most certainly being crushed, and the Mikado's empire is going to be shorn of its ability to make war is most certain being crushed and the Mikado's empire is going to be shorn of its power. Japan has seized territories and overcome tremendous internal political difficulties. She has been the dominant influences in Asia will be that same big three.

Were the world in a healthy, peaceful condition it likely would be difficult to persuade its people to accept willingly the guardianship of a triple entente like the big three. That's placing a lot of power in the hands of a few.

However, the world is sick. It's going through a re-birth which will introduce a new epoch in the progress of man. There is no earthly power except that which the world's sage can lend excepting that represented in the big three.

Fortunately the aims of the trio, as indicated by word and deed, seem to be reasonable and help to build a free and prosperous world. Their purpose to draw all nations into this effort on the basis of share-and-share alike.

Thus the main concern of the world at large now is that the big three have indeed reached the stage of mutual trust and cooperation, and that nothing happen to disturb this unity. It would be foolish to believe that there's a good chance of the big three making the grade.

Bobcats Score 13-0 Decision Over Magnolia

The Hope High School Bobcats celebrated homecoming here last night with a decisive 13-0 victory over Magnolia's Panthers, a team which earlier in the season downed the Hope eleven 19-6. It was the last game on the home field for Hope, and was hardfought all the way.

Sparked by Bell, Cook and Rogers the Cats, after turning back two Panther drives in the opening stanza, struck swiftly midway in the second period, marching 80 yards to score on five plays. In the third quarter the Cats again marched 54 yards to score using five plays.

Magnolia presented a stubborn defensive team that, with the aid of 7 completed passes, rolled up 11 first downs. Twice in the first period the Panthers marched within scoring distance only to be stopped by the Bobcat line. Held for downs on the Hope 13, Magnolia took a punt on the Bobcat 30 and worked it to the 4-yard line. On the fourth down Cobb of Hope bowled through to throw Thomas back to the 10.

Magnolia presented one best aerial attac kseen here this year. With Rogers throwing to ends Lee and Halibrack Thomas, the visitors completed 7 of 15 passes.

Taking over on their own 20 Bell broke loose for 25 yards to the 46. Then Rogers passed to Lee on the Magnolia 36, where on the second play Rogers made a 15-yard run. Bell, going to the 14. A double reverse, Bell to Rogers to Cobb netted 8 yards and Cat's first score. The second tally was setup by a pass interception on the Hope 46. A return placed the ball on Magnolia's 34 and Cook raced to the visitor's 22. Rogers and Cobb made it a first to the 10 where Bell was nicked and time ran out.

First downs were eleven each; Hope passed 6 times with no completions, Magnolia passed 17, completed 7, had one intercepted. Hope lost 5 penalties for 35 yards, Magnolia drew 6 for 40 yards.

Tonight before the evening kickoff homecoming queen, Miss Freda Fuller, accompanied by her maids, was presented with a corsage from the Bobcat captain. The Hope High School Band gave out with its latest performance during the half-time period.

Zivic Asks for Return Bout With Lamotta

By SID FEDER

New York, wnow, 13 —(AP)— Fritzie Zivic is a fellow who believes you're just as young as you feel. And Fritzie feels pretty darned young this morning.

He feels so frisky, in fact, that he stood right up in meeting to have a laugh at all those "smarties" who've been counting his old injuries here lately and to announce that when Tooth Pick Jake has other ideals, he'll fight for at least one more year before retiring.

With the memory of his gory the veteran of 13 years and 177 fights gave up his title, which was taken by Jake Lamotta, the young Bronx belter, who squeaked through to a unanimous 15-round decision in Madison Square Garden last night in the windup "preview" of the series. Fritz yelled for this return bout loudly that popular Mike Jacobs went into an immediate huddle with himself over the matter in meeting between the two in the Garden December 17.

Fritz received the cheers of the crowd of 11,330 when last night's fight ended. Although young Jake had the edge, Mr. Flatnose with the crowd by putting up a whale of a fight in spite of Lamotta's 11 1/2 pound weight edge.

Right now, however, Uncle Sam has designs on the big ex-sheet just where Fritz is going to hang his hat. The last of the five fighting Zivics reports for his draft board "screen test" Sunday. Until then he's shuffling up his business affairs.

"If I can fight after that," he told reporters today, "I want another shot at Lamotta. I know I can lick him. I thought I beat him last night."

At 149 1-2 pounds last night, Fritzie was as good as he ever was right now. In the first five rounds, he piled up 4 times, with no competitions, Magnolia passed 17, completed 7, had one intercepted. Hope lost 5 penalties for 35 yards, Magnolia drew 6 for 40 yards.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Columnist

New York, Nov. 13 —(AP)— Remember the Ivy League? . . . Since it never really existed, the old circuit has been hard to explain to football season, but all of a sudden it comes up with a pair of the best games in the east this week end (barring the Giants-Bears tussle, of course) . . . Ivy are Dartmouth vs. Cornell and Yale vs. Princeton.

. . . There was a time, back in the chrysanthemum haircut days, when the folks in the hinterlands looked on pay-eyed awe at any sub who had picked up a few splinters on the Yale bench . . . Most of their drawing power still depends on tradition, but this year, having seen all four teams play, looks for a pair of real interesting contests . . . In fact Yale and Princeton, with no defenses at all, may put on the best scoring show of their ancient series.

Observation Post

Ever since Chicago U. dropped out of Big Ten football competition, there have been reports that Pitt was pulling strings in hopes of reclaiming the Maroons . . . Well, Pitt now has lost ten straight games to western conference foes, so that's more proof do they want than the Panthers deserve the Chicago boys.

Shorts and Shells

Brigham Young, the first basketball team to invade the Garden this season, practiced practice the other day with only one lefthander among the candidates. Most of the players were not-very-big freshmen . . . The day Head Coach Chandler was named the American League's most valuable player, Gov. Ellis Arnall sent a message to the governor of Alabama Society hailing Spud as "one of the outstanding examples of clean living and wholesome sportsmanship in the nation. . . . Argentine sports fans contributed 250 gallons worth of gas coupons to enable biker rider Remigio Saavedra to try to ride 1080 kilometers from Mendoza to Buenos Aires in 26 hours. The gas was needed for a pace setting car . . .

Service Dept.

Lieut. Don McNeill, former National tennis champ, who was reelected recently by the navy for aviation training, has asked for a transfer from the embassy in Buenos Aires to "anywhere, just so it's in the middle of a good scrap." . . . Marine Staff Sergeant Gene Ward, former New York sports editor, sends back word that New Zealand is the finest place in the world for fishermen and deer hunters . . . Pvt. John MacKenzie of Glasgow, Scotland, former Philadelphia golf pro, has been assigned to a 90 mm. gun crew at Camp Edwards, Mass.

. . . Did it have a slice? . . . Bill Cadenhead, who helped the San Diego Marines upset the Southern Cal. football team, was an Alabama freshman a year ago, and Coach Frank Thomas called him "the finest left halfback prospect I've had since coming to Alabama in 1931."

Bus? No, Scout Car

The Camp Lejeune, N. C., Marines' gridders claim that Jack Thurner probably is the only football scout who can do his work on a bus station . . . Traveling to the Wake Forest-North Carolina State game, Thurner met three friends in a Raleigh, N. C., bus depot and established himself as all the "dope" on the Norfolk fleet marines . . . Thurner viewed the game to Coach Jack Chevigny, and the flet marines probably thought he'd got one of the breaks the way Camp Lejeune rolled over them. The score was 35-6.

Zebra Defeat Would Give Spa Team State Title

Little Rock, Nov. 13 —(AP)— Those Hot Springs Trojans were hotter than ever on the heels of the Pine Bluff Zebras and the Fort Smith Grizzlies were pulling out of the way on the outside today as the Arkansas high school conference championship chase soared toward the climax.

This was the picture today as the league-leading Zebras went up against their traditional rivals, the Little Rock Tigers, who have seven championship hopes of their own. The contest was to be played in Pine Bluff.

The Trojans did as expected in taking Russellville into camp, 39 to 0 over at Russellville last night but the thorough manner in which the Grizzlies manticaded the North Little Rock Wildcats was some thing else.

Paced by its hard-driving touch-down twins, Tommy Donoho and Don Bowers, a mighty Fort Smith team rolled past the Wildcats, 38 to 6 over on the Northside. The Grizzlies intercepted four Wildcat passes and converted them all into touchdowns.

Last night's results left the Trojans in second place in the standings with seven wins and one tie to Pine Bluff's six wins and one loss. Fort Smith's win over Rock were tied on a percentage basis for third spot.

In an exciting non-conference contest, El Dorado's Wildcats defeated Texarkana's Razorbacks, the offensive efforts of Holman, Texarkana's triple-threat back.

In other interclassic games, Jonesboro whipped Batesville, 19-0; Benton edged out Conway, 12-6; Clarksville subdued Atkins, 37-0; Hope beat Magnolia 13-0.

Other games scheduled for today:

McGehee 12 Lake Village 7.
Holly Grove 38; Marvell 0.
Dumas 7; Monticello 0.
Lonoke 27; Ward 0.
Subiaco 34 Greenwood 20.
Rogers 7; Huntsville 0.
Tuntes Miss. 32; Helena 0.

Baldwin Strengthens Porkers Offensive

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 13 —(AP)— A pair of Southwest Conference caliber contenders— Arkansas' Razorbacks and Southern Methodist's Mustangs—square off against each other at neutral Alamo stadium Saturday.

A crowd of 10,000 was expected despite the poor season showings of the two elevens. The Razorbacks have lost five tilts, four of them conference games, while the Mustangs have had five losses, including two conference contests.

The Porkers were strengthened by the return of Allen Baldwin, pass receiver who has been on the sidelines with an injury the past two weeks. Baldwin, one of the starting lineup was Roudy, Nicholas, at ends.

Probable starting lineups:

Ark.		S.M.U.
Baldwin	LE	Levy
Young	LT	Pool
Milam	LG	Vinsant
Wheeler	C	Frazier
Pense	RG	Holt
C. Johnson	RT	Croft
Davis	RE	McClintock
Randolph	QB	Purvis
Jones	FB	Walling
Kickoff at 2:30 p. m.		Gipson

Shoe Shineresses

Choltanooga, Tenn. —(AP)— Newest note in the manpower shortage here is the use of women bootblacks. Manager Burton Meyer of a local shoe repair shop has hired several girls to shine shoes and says they do a better job because they "take more pride in their work."

Thieves Pick On Car

Norfolk, Va. —(AP)— An automobile was stolen a few hours ago while the original thief was being arrested, robbed and captured. The second thief had to abandon it after hitting a fire hydrant but was faster than the first and escaped.

Plenty Fast

Two farmers, sitting by the stove in a village store, were engaging in a tall story fest.

"Now, I once had a nephew," said farmer Jones, "who was as fast a feller as ever I did see. Why he'd set by her poppy stoot at him,and then out run the bullet for five miles and get clean away."

"Wal, yew won't think thats so fast when yew hear about my cousin. Why that feller could blow out the light and then be undressed by the time the room got dark."

HOT SPOT

Sicily, scene of recent Allied triumphs, is subject to malaria, earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and the sirocco, a hot dry wind.

Drummer Meets 'Pals' in New Guinea

Great Falls, Mont. —(AP)— "Imagine meeting you here!" said Lieutenant Reed was the drummer in the band his brother-in-law Jimmy Marcuso . . . Well, Pitt now has lost ten straight games to western conference foes, so that's more proof do they want than the Panthers deserve the Chicago boys.

Three One-Armed Bandits Are Doing Good Job for Servicemen

By HAL BOYLE

Fighter Base in North Africa, Nov. 10 (Delayed) (AP)— Have you heard the story of the three one-armed bandits? Well, they're in the army now — three mechanical Dutch Hoods who still rob everybody who comes their way, but the dough goes back to the guys in uniform.

The "bandits" are three slot machines which back in 1942 were emptying the pockets of a group of soldiers in Wayeross, Ga., who were also Americans on their way going overseas as part of the 12th Air Force Service Command.

There were so many slot machines in the gin spots of Wayeross that the good citizens decided they had become a threat to the morals of their soldier guests, so they unbolted the sheriff to step in and the machines were confiscated and taken out of circulation.

But shortly afterward the sheriff received a letter from an army officer. His request was brief, but apparently eloquent, for a few days later one dime and two nickel slot machines were doing a land-slide business in the post exchange at the nearby army base.

In stead of lining the pockets of right club owners, however, the profits went into a special fund for the soldiers' welfare. Every day the machines had purchased a washing machine, an electric iron and many other conveniences not considered basic army equipment.

Then the men were suddenly moved to North Africa. Along with them went the three slot machines, packed in innocent looking crates. For weeks they provided entertainment for the combat crews waiting for the organization fund, but when the Germans started bombing and strafing at Kasserine Pass the service command unit was called upon to do something else and the coin grabbers were left behind with the quartermaster.

Now they have turned up in the officers' club of a unit training fighter pilots.

Mess officer of the unit is Lt. James Cooper of 915 40th St., Birmingham, Ala., who once was a high school football star and who surrounds pilots with his milk with one of the most ornate clubs in the whole North African area.

The three hard-working little slot machines have paid for it by the empty soda water bottles, the handsome brown leather chairs, deep-piled Persian rugs and even the bar itself table. They also have eliminated the need of mess officers ever having to beg, buy many little "extras" for the enlisted men.

Each night the officers and enlisted men of the squadron eat dinner at the same table, but they don't have to pay for their meals. Instead, they put their money in the slot machines and dines hampered operations for a while.

"Then the machines were moved to Algeria and Tunisia, and for a long time we got into the war and the British production has trebled, so that the pre-Jones Beach production is only slightly ahead of her losses.

Some months ago I wrote that the blueprint for a separate air force was on the president's desk. Since then this has been verified in the highest circles, and the president is only slightly ahead of her losses.

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—Within the next few months, maybe only weeks, the great air story of this war is going to be written into the record.

In military, naval and aviation circles here, they are positive of it. Let's examine some reasons:

(1) Military experts here say definitely that you will hear of bombings of the Axis from western Russia. American air forces almost any week now. While some say that this is a benefit of the Moscow conference, there are indications this plan has been underway for quite a while.

It is true, the importance of the Russian front is overestimated. In spite of Russia's great ground offensive, it hasn't had the bomber strength to disrupt communications and production in eastern Germany. Russia's bomber force can be established there in mid-winter, it will be the bundle of straws that breaks the camel's back on the eastern front.

(2) The appointment of Lt. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz as chief of the new all-American air forces in the Mediterranean theater of war as announcement was made, Spaatz, a new 15th air force and assisting Weinerneustadt and the Messerschmitt assembly plant there. A year ago this spring, when he forced the army high command to reveal that it was building it, he marked the beginning of whipsaw bombing. Implied is the fact that Spaatz is ready to match bombings from England with bombings from Africa.

(3) In spite of England's winter weather, there will be very little rest for the British isles in coming months. United Nations air forces have 10,000 planes, a combined their skills that they can take off in any kind of weather to do either precision or patterned bombing.

(4) As the Pacific, in spite of months of lack of concentration, is getting its share of bombing. These victories, it is said here, are proof that once we settle down to the job of knocking out the Japs out of the air, our successes will be spectacular.

There are many other factors: the losses of German and Japanese planes; the fact that the German industry (some reports say 75 per cent) has been dispersed; that industry already has been knocked out, for example); the increase in the quantity of bombs and dimes losses (American plane production has increased astronomically, even since times we got into the war and British production has trebled, so that the pre-Jones Beach production is only slightly ahead of her losses.

Some months ago I wrote that the blueprint for a separate air force was on the president's desk. Since then this has been verified in the highest circles, and the president, in a letter to Congress, made it clear that the step will probably be taken gradually.

General Spaatz's new appointment is just one more step in that direction. As the new airpower makes itself important this winter, there will be others. By the time the war is over, maybe there'll be the separate air force will be accomplished fact. The odds are that it will come out without disrupting existing commands or lowering morale.

OPA Assailed by House Group; Change Sought

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)— The Office of Price Administration was assailed today by a congressional committee as "grossly inefficient" in giving promulgated "illegal, absurd, useless and conflicting" regulations and of having "overstepped its power to authorize it to sentence citizens of the United States to starvation."

The committee, headed by Rep. Smith (D-Va) and created by the House to keep a check on activities of executive agencies, "recommended changes in existing law to "retain and strengthen inflation control and at the same time eliminate the abuses and injustices now apparent."

Conceding a need for "extraordinary governmental action" in time of war to prevent inflation, economic as well as military resources, the committee declared, "Prices are right and wrong ways to accomplish these purposes," the wrong way being by the usurpation of power by executive agencies through "misinterpretation and abuse of powers" granted by Congress "and the consent of powers not granted."

Attacking the OPA it made this charge:

"The Office of Price Administration has assumed and exercised powers to legislate by regulation and has, by unauthorized acts of Congress, set up a nation-wide system of judicial tribunals through which federal executive agency judges the actions of American citizens in relation to its own regulations and orders and imposes drastic and unconstitutional penalties upon those adjudged guilty by them in certain instances of vital importance to the orderly and due process of law."

The OPA was not alone in seizing legislative and judicial functions, the committee said, promising to expose in future reports "other executive agencies."

The committee said documents found in the files of David Ginsburg, former OPA general counsel who was indicted here for unauthorized practice of law in February last April, proved "a paramount purpose" of legislation drafted by Ginsburg and Leon Henderson, first OPA head, was to place "so far as possible, the authority and viewable power and authority in the hands of the administrator."

Beyond that, the report dealt generally with OPA operations.

The committee said it found OPA "has developed by unauthorized and illegal judicial system and that through the mass of rules and regulations daily enacted by that

Uncle Sam's Tax Headaches

U. S. Treasury officials estimate that some 39 billion tax dollars will be collected from the citizenry during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1944.

If this figure sets you back on your reclaimed rubber heels, you must of course let your reflexes react promptly so as to recover for realization of the wallaping shock that this is nothing at all. For the total cost of running the government this year is $106 billion, $100 billion of which is this year's cost of the war, the total appropriated cost of the war to date being $330 billion.

The $39 billion collected in taxes therefore only about 12 per cent, or one-eighth of the cost of the war up to now, but the debates over how much to raise in this $39 billion will be important as that was formerly the Alton CCC Camp, located six miles south of Hope, Arkansas on Highway 29.

The members of the American Legion have enlisted the aid of every in trying to obtain some governmental agencies to cooperate in this undertaking, the committee in charge decree it best to sell all properties and build a building after the war that will be more suitable for all purposes.

We have arranged for a sale, Monday, November 22nd, at the camp site. All buildings and equipment will be sold at auction to the highest bidder. Armistice time will be given to remove the buildings.

Legionnaire John Cassidy will be on the property each day from now on to assist anyone who cares to inspect the buildings and wishes to bid on. The public is invited to attend the sale between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. daily.

De Marigny Invited to Leave Bahamas

By E. V. W. JONES

Nassau, Bahamas, Nov. 15 (AP)— Shortly after it was learned that Count de Marigny was in the Bahamas, Alfred de Marigny announced that he would file suit for former Nancy Oakes, wooed by and remarried this afternoon.

The young playboy count de Marigny said he had obtained permission from Archbishop Arthur J. Drossaerts, Catholic archbishop in charge of this diocese. He set the time as 2 p.m. at the Roman Catholic Cathedral in Xavier church.

De Marigny was acquitted last week of the murder of his wife's millionaire father, Sir Harry Oakes.

The jury voted a unanimous recommendation that he be deported from the Bahamas.

The governor-in-council, at a special meeting Saturday, decided to follow the jury and his close friend, Marquis Georges de Visdelou-Latour.

De Marigny explained he and Nancy will be wed again because "we were so much in love before."

In an interview, he said he hopes to be in the United States would understand his troubles.

"I have come to the devil and the deep blue sea," he said, adding "we would have a breathing spell and then decide what we could do in the United States."

Lt. Col. Colonel John McAndrews said he would refer the request to the State Department at Washington. He said de Marigny and de Visdelou seek admission to the United States.

It is reported de Marigny and de Visdelou will go to Miami to make arrangements can be made.

De Marigny declared "all this is inhuman to a poor girl who has been through so much."

"I hope," he declared, "that the people of the United States who read of my troubles will realize I am people in trouble will understand my situation."

De Marigny declared he had offered "my military services here" in Canada and to the de Gaulle movement, but I was rejected because of my stomach trouble."

"I am sorry this was not better understood," he added.

He said he had several scholastic degrees in agriculture, and had had a variety of interesting jobs at work in the Bahamas, "but lately my luck has been against me."

His trial was expensive, he said, "and now I must do something".

Tons of Bombs Dropped on Two Key Jap Bases

—War in Pacific

Southwest Pacific Allied Headquarters, Nov. 15 (AP)— American bombers, in a perfectly coordinated three-ply attack, dropped a record load of 223 tons of explosives on Alexishafen and Madang, ending for the time being an increasing threat to Allied positions on New Guinea.

The mission was to smash bases from which the Japanese had been staging Australian troops and American aircraft in New Guinea's Markham and Ramu valleys, and apparently supplying forward bases.

Shortly after dawn Saturday P-47 and P-39 fighters strafed the two fields as Allied heavy bombers came in at the expense of one plane, downed by severe anti-aircraft opposition.

Then came wave after wave of Liberator bombers, approaching in attitude, followed by Mitchells at 9,000 height. The Liberators they dropped was the heaviest load ever thrown against New Guinea and was second only to the 250-ton raid Oct. 12 against Rabaul.

A strong force of fighters formed a protective umbrella, but not a Japanese plane rose to fight.

Our bombers struck also at Rabaul and Gasmata on New Britain and raked Buka and Buin on the northern and southern extremities of Bougainville. Five floatplanes were destroyed at their base on Kapingamarangi island and three cargo ships were torpedoed and bombed with unobserved results in night attacks on Kavieng, New Ireland.

As to the fighting on Bougainville, where U. S. armies secured a beachhead at Empress Augusta Bay Nov. 1, Adm. William F. Halsey Jr., commander of the South Pacific forces, reported the farthest point of penetration Friday and commented "progress now is heartening."

Halsey conceded the landing had been opposed by the Japanese but the entire Solomons campaign but the present advance was proceeding ahead of schedule.

State High Tribunal Reverses Decision of Lower Court, Rules Teletypes Used for Gambling

Little Rock, Nov. 15, —(AP)— Governor Adkins' campaign against alleged gambling houses in Hot Springs won legal support today from the supreme court which reversed Pulaski chancery and circuit courts in two cases involving the use of wire service information and ordered the cases sent back to circuit court for further proceedings in a manner consistent with the decision.

The tribunal also ruled that justices of the peace had authority to issue search and seizure warrants against gambling houses and that state police were empowered to execute warrants. It reversed a Pulaski chancery in a suit in which Ben Laxton, Hot Springs night club owner, had asked for an injunction against Gray Albright and assistant chief, C. P. Atkinson to act on warrants issued by Hurst.

The decision reversed the lower courts to dismiss the suits for want of equity.

Associated Justice Robins, who prepared the Karston decision, dissented in the Murcier case.

"We think it clear on admitted facts that Murcier deliberately converted these teletype machines to an unlawful use thereby converting them to gambling devices," the court held in a majority decision prepared by Associate Justice Holt.

Justice Ben Macheins were seized last summer by state police they were transmitting information relative to horse racing and track odds, the opinion said, adding:

"It is unnecessary to discuss and a betting the operation of various gambling houses."

"A dictator-minded executive backed up by a submissive legislature might conceivably use the power exercised in this instance as a thority to raid and destroy plants of 'opposition' newspapers and justify such oppressive acts on the grounds that the news or editorial published in the papers were in the process of the chancery court in Arkansas. Such right operate the gambling house hereafter without first obtaining the state police. So we have a suitor who impliedly admits that he has been maintaining a gambling house contrary to law, and asking the court and asking he be protected in the continued maintenance of that business.

In holding valid the search and seizure warrants issued by Hurst the court said justices of the peace could not be denied the nec

Combined Operations: The Story of the COMMANDOS — Based on the Book-of-the-Month

FROM THE OFFICIAL RECORDS — ILLUSTRATIONS BY WILLIAM SHARP

It became a battle of position . . .

The colonel was the first to fall.

THE BATTLE FOR SYRIA, French-mandated territory which at the fall of France passed under the control of the pro-Nazi Vichy government, produced one of the great Commando heroes of the war. He was Major G. C. T. Keyes, son of Sir Roger Keyes, then admiral of the British Fleet and Director of Combined Operations. Young Keyes was second in command of a troop of Commandos which he had himself trained and chosen to take Kafr Bada, a redoubt and bridgehead which was holding up the main army, and like a true Commando did so by turning a mistake into an advantage. He was decorated and made a lieutenant colonel for one of the war's most heroic feats of gallantry when, with a handful of men he crossed a river under murderous fire from 75's, mortars and machine guns, and less than an hour after forming his lines took the redoubt which had stalemated the whole Syrian action and held up the main army.

After a fairly swift advance, the Australians fighting with the British in Syria were held up at the Litani River, which was strongly defended by the French Colonial Army, to subdue Syria were held up at the Litani River, which was strongly defended by the French Colonial Army, among them crack Algerians. This strongest of Syrian redoubts threw withering artillery fire at the British, and the advance had degenerated into a battle of position.

An infantry landing ship with twenty-seven officers and 456 men of the Commandos aboard, escorted by two destroyers, made the mouth of the river. Under Lieut. Col. R. R. H. Pedder, the landing was made after the men had split into three detachments. Pedder made his decision when he heard that the French had blown up the bridge at Kafr Bada and had withdrawn their troops to the south side of the river to strengthen the redoubt there. Bright moonlight made the landing operations plain as day to the enemy, and when Pedder landed and started to shove it out with the shore positions he was the first to fall, shot through the chest. A French officer took command of his detachment. Battling desperately, they captured the local barracks and prevented reinforcements from moving up to the site of the blasted bridge. The second detachment, under Capt. G. R. More, struck a quiet silence and captured a number of howitzers and field guns, but through a fatal error Keyes and his men had crossed the Litani on the wrong side of the river. (Tomorrow: The Commandos capture the redoubt and end the Syrian stalemate.)

The Doctor's Daughters

By FAITH BALDWIN

COPYRIGHT, 1943, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THIS STORY: When Jim Thompson proposes Mary Martin carries home to him the fact that Jim's sister Ruth, spoiled and bored, is fascinated by the attentions her brother's friend Frank Edgar pays her. Mary, who has been working at Sterling Nurse Intent on her job, Nancy chides Jim for working so hard.

JIM'S APARTMENT

CHAPTER XIII

EMILY'S room faced the front of the house. She could hear every word Nancy was saying to Jim Thompson as they sat there on the steps.

"Don't go in yet. Father's up, at all hours."

"But I must see him, Nancy."

"I'm not sure he—"

Emily could hear Jim come in the house. The screen door slammed, his feet sounded on the stairs, she heard her father's irritable roar of greeting, her mother's voice.

She heard Jim go downstairs again, too, at a time. The door slammed once more. And Nancy said:

"You took long enough. No, don't go over to the apartment. Sit here."

Jim said after a moment, "I should go and catch some sleep. There may be calls. I expect one in fact."

"You'll be up all night," said Nancy. "Why in the world anyone wants to be a doctor!"

"Don't know," he asked, "having lived with your father all these years?"

"It's deadly," she said savagely, "and killing. A horrible business. Mother's never had any fun . . . she's entitled to it." She added, "I wish you'd been single tonight. It was nice, on the beach. But I did get so bored. At first the summer was rather amusing, picking up old friends and then—well, it all went stale. Same faces, same gags, same lines, same—passes. What about Frank?" he inquired.

PIPE smoke, strong and sweet, drifted lazily upward, the scent of it was in Emily's nostrils.

"We had a fight," admitted Nancy, and laughed.

Emily could not catch Jim's low reply. But she heard Nancy's next sentence, clear and gay and entertained.

"What in the world gave you that idea? . . . As if I could be interested in Frank Edgar!"

A moment later these was a stir on the porch and Nancy said:

"I'm wide awake. Everyone else has gone to bed, I suppose. You'll be more apt to get some fun if you have to go out again. I've an idea. Why don't you like me driving. I'll come over and pay you a call, and make you some coffee and we'll sit up and drink it and gossip."

Possibly he demurred. Emily didn't know. But a little later she heard their footsteps on the wooden treads and then going, quiet, across the grass, and—more loudly, down the gravel to the garage.

She rose wearily, undressed and went to bed. She thought, in the darkness, Nancy's very right . . . you had no business listening.

But she was conscious of a cold anger. Nancy must be out of her mind.

Why shouldn't she go to Jim's apartment if she wanted to, brew him a cup of coffee, talk with him . . . parade her little tricks. He should be in bed and asleep, but Nancy wouldn't think of that. She wouldn't of course question the decorum of the impulse. Nowadays the word decorum was as seldom used as the word indecorous. Jim was her father's assistant. Her father, her mother, were together under one roof, next door to the garage apartment. No one would think anything of it—

She had quarreled with Frank. Why? And she was amusing herself with Jim because she was annoyed, hurt perhaps.

Not hurt, thought Emily.

To her horror the quick, sudden tears forced themselves against her closed lids, crawled slowly down her cheeks.

I'm not in love with him, she thought.

And knew that she was.

WHEN had it begun? Had it started back in the old hospital days when they'd been just good friends, working, talking, laughing, working together? Or when he'd walked into the house on Atlantic Street a few weeks ago? Or the first time she had seen him look at Nancy with his blue eyes warming and his lopsided grin? Or tonight, coming home from the hospital? It didn't matter when, it didn't matter whether it had happened years, a month, a week, an hour ago, or just now. It had happened and that was that.

She thought miserably, There's nothing I can do about it—go away perhaps, find a job in Boston—anything.

Someone tapped at her door and her mother came in.

"Asleep?"

"No. Wait a moment." Emily fumbled under a pillow, scrubbed her handkerchief across her face and eyes, steadied her voice, reached out and turned on the bedside light. "What's the matter," she asked, "is father—"

"No, he's all right. First asleep." Millicent's hair was pinned into curls, caught under a net cap. Her face was scrubbed. Despite the fine lines, it had a light of youth. She had a pot of cold cream in her hand and sitting down beside Emily's bed she absentmindedly began to stroke the cream across her forehead and under her eyes. She said:

"I looked out of the window just now. Nancy's over in the apartment with Jim."

Adkins Pledges Action

Little Rock, Nov. 15 —(AP)— Governor Adkins said today he was related over the decision of the Supreme Court upholding authority of the state police to raid allegiance gambling establishments.

"Based on these decisions I will use every resource in my command to put the gamblers out of business," the governor asserted.

Guy Albright, superintendent of state police, when advised of the decisions said he would consult his counsel before determining what to do about telegraph machines that had been seized from W. R. Muncrief, Hot Springs printer.

Albright said he had returned the machines to Muncrief on orders of the Pulaski circuit court but had taken a receipt for them and was not certain what further authority he now had. He was represented in the Muncrief case by John P. Vesey, Hope attorney and chairman of the State Police Commission.

agency it has also developed such intricate and involved administrative review machinery that litigants are completely bewildered by the maze of procedure through which they must wander to eventually arrive at a court which will grant them only the crumbs of judicial relief.

"This situation must be changed and changed immediately," it declared.

In a period of less than 19 months, the committee said, 3,192 regulations, amendments and orders were issued by OPA, many of them having been drafted by "obscure officials having little business experience." Only 552 public laws were enacted by Congress during the same period, it added.

There was no immediate official comment by OPA, but Reps. Scanlon (D-Fla.) and McGregor (D-Wis), chairmen and secretary respectively of the congressional committee for the protection of consumers promptly issued a statement on behalf of this group attacking the Smith committee conclusions as "unfortunate, misleading and harmful to our national economic stabilization program."

"The Smith report is based upon questionable, and in many instances, seriously biased interpretations of the statutory and constitutional powers of OPA," they asserted. "The consumers-protection committee had a membership of more than 60 congressmen "vitally concerned with the effective operation of our price control and rationing program."

They said this group "does not hold that the OPA should be above criticism or that the OPA in the past has not made some mistakes," but added: "Those forces in our country who have from the outset opposed effective price control and rationing will, in the Smith committee report, find comfort and a new weapon in their fight against our war government's anti-inflation program."

Describes Jap Attack on Field Hospital

BY VERN HAUGLAND
Torokina Cape, Bougainville Island, Nov. 9 — (Delayed) —(AP)

How the Japanese attacked a United States navy field hospital last Sunday during a battle near the Piromskina river on the marines' left flank was described today by Lieut. Comm. Gordon H. Bruce, New York City and Englewood, N. J.

The commander, in charge of the medical unit, told this story to Tech. Sgt. Ted Link, former St. Louis Post-Dispatch reporter and now a marine corps combat correspondent.

"We set up our tents near the beach on the left flank. At noon marine casualties from that sector began coming in and at 1 o'clock we had 32 patients. The Japs began their attack on the hospital then.

"My surgeons were operating on a marine when shots ripped through the tent. I ran to the beach with a couple of corpsmen and unscrewed three machine guns from Higgins boats which were smashed in the heavy surf in the original landings.

"We brought the guns back to the hospital and I drafted a few marines to operate them and set up a defense line. A sniper's bullet smacked through the top of the tent and went into the lung of a chief pharmacists mate. We evacuated him at once.

"It began to rain and water filled up our foxhole operating rooms. At 2 o'clock the firing increased and I sent a runner to ask a marine infantry commander on the beach for help. He had only 15 men and couldn't spare them. Then I got two marines plodding up a jungle trail to take up guard positions in the jungle 30 feet from the tent. The corpsmen helped in operations and piled sandbags around tents as the firing increased. Finally a platoon of marines came to our aid and set up a defensive position. My surgeons continued operating until 9 o'clock. Only then did we evacuate the patients, now numbering 50. Not one died during the day despite the confusion."

Bribery Charges Are Dismissed

Oklahoma City, Nov. 15 —(AP)— Bribery charges against former Governor Leon C. Phillips and his one-time parole officer, Robert R. Fitzgerald, were dismissed at the opening of their trial today on motion of the prosecution.

Fitzgerald left the conspiracy count for immediate hearing.

The motion was mandatory on the court and County Attorney John Wammack said he would not ask would elect to try Fitzgerald first.

The pair are accused of conspiracy to obtain $500 each from Andrew Jackson Hall for life termer Dr. J. Eisiminger of Oklahoma City.

The trial was immediately recessed and will resume Tuesday.

Dudley was granted a recess to check over his list of witnesses before deciding whether he would agree or contest the state's decision to try Fitzgerald first.

The maximum penalty for conspiracy is two years imprisonment and a fine of $100,000.

More than four score witnesses had been summoned by both sides for the trial.

Combined Operations: The Story of the COMMANDOS — Based on the Book-of-the-Month

FROM THE OFFICIAL RECORDS — ILLUSTRATIONS BY WILLIAM SHARP

It became a battle of position . . .

The colonel was the first to fall.

THE BATTLE FOR SYRIA, French-mandated territory which at the fall of France passed under the control of the pro-Nazi Vichy government, produced one of the great Commando heroes of the war. He was Major G. C. T. Keyes, son of Sir Roger Keyes, then admiral of the British Fleet and Director of Combined Operations. Young Keyes was second in command of a troop of Commandos which he had himself trained and chosen to take Kafr Bada, a redoubt and bridgehead which was holding up the main army, and like a true Commando did so by turning a mistake into an advantage. He was decorated and made a lieutenant colonel for one of the war's most heroic feats of gallantry when, with a handful of men he crossed a river under murderous fire from 75's, mortars and machine guns, and less than an hour after forming his lines took the redoubt which had stalemated the whole Syrian action and held up the main army.

After a fairly swift advance, the Australians fighting with the British in Syria were held up at the Litani River, which was strongly defended by the French Colonial Army, to subdue Syria were held up at the Litani River, which was strongly defended by the French Colonial Army, among them crack Algerians. This strongest of Syrian redoubts threw withering artillery fire at the British, and the advance had degenerated into a battle of position.

An infantry landing ship with twenty-seven officers and 456 men of the Commandos aboard, escorted by two destroyers, made the mouth of the river. Under Lieut. Col. R. R. H. Pedder, the landing was made after the men had split into three detachments. Pedder made his decision when he heard that the French had blown up the bridge at Kafr Bada and had withdrawn their troops to the south side of the river to strengthen the redoubt there. Bright moonlight made the landing operations plain as day to the enemy, and when Pedder landed and started to shove it out with the shore positions he was the first to fall, shot through the chest. A French officer took command of his detachment. Battling desperately, they captured the local barracks and prevented reinforcements from moving up to the site of the blasted bridge. The second detachment, under Capt. G. R. More, struck a quiet silence and captured a number of howitzers and field guns, but through a fatal error Keyes and his men had crossed the Litani on the wrong side of the river. (Tomorrow: The Commandos capture the redoubt and end the Syrian stalemate.)

The Doctor's Daughters

By FAITH BALDWIN

COPYRIGHT, 1943, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THIS STORY: When Jim Thompson proposes Mary Martin carries home to him the fact that Jim's sister Ruth, spoiled and bored, is fascinated by the attentions her brother's friend Frank Edgar pays her. Mary, who has been working at Sterling Nurse Intent on her job, Nancy chides Jim for working so hard.

JIM'S APARTMENT

CHAPTER XIII

EMILY'S room faced the front of the house. She could hear every word Nancy was saying to Jim Thompson as they sat there on the steps.

"Don't go in yet. Father's up, at all hours."

"But I must see him, Nancy."

"I'm not sure he—"

Emily could hear Jim come in the house. The screen door slammed, his feet sounded on the stairs, she heard her father's irritable roar of greeting, her mother's voice.

She heard Jim go downstairs again, too, at a time. The door slammed once more. And Nancy said:

"You took long enough. No, don't go over to the apartment. Sit here."

Jim said after a moment, "I should go and catch some sleep. There may be calls. I expect one in fact."

"You'll be up all night," said Nancy. "Why in the world anyone wants to be a doctor!"

"Don't know," he asked, "having lived with your father all these years?"

"It's deadly," she said savagely, "and killing. A horrible business. Mother's never had any fun . . . she's entitled to it." She added, "I wish you'd been single tonight. It was nice, on the beach. But I did get so bored. At first the summer was rather amusing, picking up old friends and then—well, it all went stale. Same faces, same gags, same lines, same—passes. What about Frank?" he inquired.

PIPE smoke, strong and sweet, drifted lazily upward, the scent of it was in Emily's nostrils.

"We had a fight," admitted Nancy, and laughed.

Emily could not catch Jim's low reply. But she heard Nancy's next sentence, clear and gay and entertained.

"What in the world gave you that idea? . . . As if I could be interested in Frank Edgar!"

A moment later these was a stir on the porch and Nancy said:

"I'm wide awake. Everyone else has gone to bed, I suppose. You'll be more apt to get some fun if you have to go out again. I've an idea. Why don't you like me driving. I'll come over and pay you a call, and make you some coffee and we'll sit up and drink it and gossip."

Possibly he demurred. Emily didn't know. But a little later she heard their footsteps on the wooden treads and then going, quiet, across the grass, and—more loudly, down the gravel to the garage.

She rose wearily, undressed and went to bed. She thought, in the darkness, Nancy's very right . . . you had no business listening.

But she was conscious of a cold anger. Nancy must be out of her mind.

Why shouldn't she go to Jim's apartment if she wanted to, brew him a cup of coffee, talk with him . . . parade her little tricks. He should be in bed and asleep, but Nancy wouldn't think of that. She wouldn't of course question the decorum of the impulse. Nowadays the word decorum was as seldom used as the word indecorous. Jim was her father's assistant. Her father, her mother, were together under one roof, next door to the garage apartment. No one would think anything of it—

She had quarreled with Frank. Why? And she was amusing herself with Jim because she was annoyed, hurt perhaps.

Not hurt, thought Emily.

To her horror the quick, sudden tears forced themselves against her closed lids, crawled slowly down her cheeks.

I'm not in love with him, she thought.

And knew that she was.

WHEN had it begun? Had it started back in the old hospital days when they'd been just good friends, working, talking, laughing, working together? Or when he'd walked into the house on Atlantic Street a few weeks ago? Or the first time she had seen him look at Nancy with his blue eyes warming and his lopsided grin? Or tonight, coming home from the hospital? It didn't matter when, it didn't matter whether it had happened years, a month, a week, an hour ago, or just now. It had happened and that was that.

She thought miserably, There's nothing I can do about it—go away perhaps, find a job in Boston—anything.

Someone tapped at her door and her mother came in.

"Asleep?"

"No. Wait a moment." Emily fumbled under a pillow, scrubbed her handkerchief across her face and eyes, steadied her voice, reached out and turned on the bedside light. "What's the matter," she asked, "is father—"

"No, he's all right. First asleep." Millicent's hair was pinned into curls, caught under a net cap. Her face was scrubbed. Despite the fine lines, it had a light of youth. She had a pot of cold cream in her hand and sitting down beside Emily's bed she absentmindedly began to stroke the cream across her forehead and under her eyes. She said:

"I looked out of the window just now. Nancy's over in the apartment with Jim."

Adkins Pledges Action

Little Rock, Nov. 15 —(AP)— Governor Adkins said today he was related over the decision of the Supreme Court upholding authority of the state police to raid allegiance gambling establishments.

"Based on these decisions I will use every resource in my command to put the gamblers out of business," the governor asserted.

Guy Albright, superintendent of state police, when advised of the decisions said he would consult his counsel before determining what to do about telegraph machines that had been seized from W. R. Muncrief, Hot Springs printer.

Albright said he had returned the machines to Muncrief on orders of the Pulaski circuit court but had taken a receipt for them and was not certain what further authority he now had. He was represented in the Muncrief case by John P. Vesey, Hope attorney and chairman of the State Police Commission.

agency it has also developed such intricate and involved administrative review machinery that litigants are completely bewildered by the maze of procedure through which they must wander to eventually arrive at a court which will grant them only the crumbs of judicial relief.

"This situation must be changed and changed immediately," it declared.

In a period of less than 19 months, the committee said, 3,192 regulations, amendments and orders were issued by OPA, many of them having been drafted by "obscure officials having little business experience." Only 552 public laws were enacted by Congress during the same period, it added.

There was no immediate official comment by OPA, but Reps. Scanlon (D-Fla.) and McGregor (D-Wis), chairmen and secretary respectively of the congressional committee for the protection of consumers promptly issued a statement on behalf of this group attacking the Smith committee conclusions as "unfortunate, misleading and harmful to our national economic stabilization program."

"The Smith report is based upon questionable, and in many instances, seriously biased interpretations of the statutory and constitutional powers of OPA," they asserted. "The consumers-protection committee had a membership of more than 60 congressmen "vitally concerned with the effective operation of our price control and rationing program."

They said this group "does not hold that the OPA should be above criticism or that the OPA in the past has not made some mistakes," but added: "Those forces in our country who have from the outset opposed effective price control and rationing will, in the Smith committee report, find comfort and a new weapon in their fight against our war government's anti-inflation program."

Describes Jap Attack on Field Hospital

BY VERN HAUGLAND
Torokina Cape, Bougainville Island, Nov. 9 — (Delayed) —(AP)

How the Japanese attacked a United States navy field hospital last Sunday during a battle near the Piromskina river on the marines' left flank was described today by Lieut. Comm. Gordon H. Bruce, New York City and Englewood, N. J.

The commander, in charge of the medical unit, told this story to Tech. Sgt. Ted Link, former St. Louis Post-Dispatch reporter and now a marine corps combat correspondent.

"We set up our tents near the beach on the left flank. At noon marine casualties from that sector began coming in and at 1 o'clock we had 32 patients. The Japs began their attack on the hospital then.

"My surgeons were operating on a marine when shots ripped through the tent. I ran to the beach with a couple of corpsmen and unscrewed three machine guns from Higgins boats which were smashed in the heavy surf in the original landings.

"We brought the guns back to the hospital and I drafted a few marines to operate them and set up a defense line. A sniper's bullet smacked through the top of the tent and went into the lung of a chief pharmacists mate. We evacuated him at once.

"It began to rain and water filled up our foxhole operating rooms. At 2 o'clock the firing increased and I sent a runner to ask a marine infantry commander on the beach for help. He had only 15 men and couldn't spare them. Then I got two marines plodding up a jungle trail to take up guard positions in the jungle 30 feet from the tent. The corpsmen helped in operations and piled sandbags around tents as the firing increased. Finally a platoon of marines came to our aid and set up a defensive position. My surgeons continued operating until 9 o'clock. Only then did we evacuate the patients, now numbering 50. Not one died during the day despite the confusion."

Bribery Charges Are Dismissed

Oklahoma City, Nov. 15 —(AP)— Bribery charges against former Governor Leon C. Phillips and his one-time parole officer, Robert R. Fitzgerald, were dismissed at the opening of their trial today on motion of the prosecution.

Fitzgerald left the conspiracy count for immediate hearing.

The motion was mandatory on the court and County Attorney John Wammack said he would not ask would elect to try Fitzgerald first.

The pair are accused of conspiracy to obtain $500 each from Andrew Jackson Hall for life termer Dr. J. Eisiminger of Oklahoma City.

The trial was immediately recessed and will resume Tuesday.

Dudley was granted a recess to check over his list of witnesses before deciding whether he would agree or contest the state's decision to try Fitzgerald first.

The maximum penalty for conspiracy is two years imprisonment and a fine of $100,000.

More than four score witnesses had been summoned by both sides for the trial.

Cotton Consumption Drops in October

Washington ,Nov. 15 —(AP)— The Census Bureau reported today cotton consumed during October totaled 946,208 bales of lint and 117,398 bales of linters, compared with 973,088 of lint and 115,900 of linters during October, 1942.

For the three months ending Oct. 31, cotton consumption totaled 2,560,578 bales of lint and 330,206 bales of linters, compared with 2,857,723 of lint and 353,955 of linters in the corresponding period a year ago.

Cotton on hand Oct. 31 was reported held as follows:

In consuming establishments, 2,203,829 bales of lint and 431,221 bales of linters, compared with 2,075,172 of lint and 309,780 of linters a year ago.

In public storage and at compresses, 12,264,332 bales of lint and 43,633 bales of linters, compared with 12,634,556 of lint and 779 of linters a year ago.

Crop ginned prior to October 18 was reported as follows: Running bales, including 500 round bales, 9,000,000 counted as one bale; equivalent 500 pound bales, 9,000,000; number of gins, 12,000.

Says Hitler Preparing Germans for More Bad News

Analysis of the News by Mackenzie

Editorial Comment Written Today and Moved by Telegraph or Cable.

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Nazidom's great man, who seems to walk his wonders by intuition, indeed seems to have had a flash of second-sight (or was it just keen sense?) during his recent Munich beer-cellar speech when he told his people in about so many words they were headed for mountains of grief.

The titanic battle on the Russian front has worsened suddenly for the Hitlerites. Two outstanding developments indicate this greatest of all armed conflicts is in the midst of another far-reaching crisis. These events are:

1. The Red avalanche has engulfed Zhitomir, thereby slashing Hitler's thousand-mile front virtually in two, and pointing a spearhead at the Polish border, some sixty miles away. It is one of the key victories of the war.

2. The Germans today announced that a million Russian troops have broken through the Nazi defenses in the Dnieper-Send trap which the Muscovites are trying to close about the Hitlerites in that region. This hasn't been confirmed by the Soviet.

The Berlin statement about a break-through at the trap would seem to be calculated to prepare the German public for another big withdrawal of their forces in that area. As a matter of fact it wouldn't be surprising if the retreat already is well on its way.

If this is true, there is a direct relation between the retirement in the extreme south and the dangerous extension of the Red wedge which has been driven to the West line of Zhitomir to the north. A deep thrust through the front above the Dnieper bend would render the German position on the southern flank untenable.

The mighty Russian war machine is gathering momentum as the ground freezes. Time for the Germans have averted a debacle by the addition of heavy snow on the unwieldy line, and despite the critical developments there's no sign at the moment that they won't be able to continue falling back with some semblance of order. However, their position has steadily worsened and they're on the broad highway to ultimate disaster.

It's amazing the Russians have been able to keep their terrific offensive moving through the terrible fields of mud produced by the fall rains, especially as they had been driving steadily since July 12, and by the rules of war were due to pause for rest, repairs and consolidation of gains by now. But the mud was in favor of the defending Nazis, and the fact they were unable to halt the Red armies is a clear indication of the superiority of the Russian military power.

While the Hitlerites have been able to retreat without falling into a general rout, they not only have suffered fearful losses in men but have lost a colossal amount of material. Even assuming that Nazi power has been serious, for the harassed Fuehrer has lost a great deal of his reserves of reserves, and to overcome youth and in middle-age guilt, it must be that, so far as concerns the exigencies of the moment, his loss in material has been a greater blow.

If Hitler's war indus ries were working full blast, and possessed great quantities of supplies as they did in the early part of the war, then his recent losses in equipment on the bloody bat le fields of Russia wouldn't be so serious. But the American and British bombing teams a ripping the German industrial centers to pieces. The Fuehrer can't replace his losses on the eastern front, and consequently the growing weaker each day as he sinks in his quicksands of blood and to 12.50; silage 12.75 down.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

Chicago, Nov. 15— (AP)— Wheat and rye advanced about 4 cents a day on buying attributed to heavy disappearance of the bread cereal during the first quarter of the crop season and reports that the 1944 winter wheat goals were not likely to be achieved. Fractional gains were scored by oats and barley.

Traders said the strength in rye was based on a belief that, if ceilings should be set on oats and barley, marketings of these grains may dry up and thereby expand the demand for rye as a substitute. Large premiums were paid for choice offerings of oats in the cash market, supporting futures. The trade closely watched Washington developments regarding subsidies.

At the close wheat was 3-4—1 1-8 higher; December $1.38 3-4 or 5-8; rye was up 5-8—7-8, December $1.12 1-2—3-4; corn were ahead 1-8—5-8, December 78 1-2, and barley was up 3-8—5-8, December 1.15 5-8.

1943 Rose Bowl Game to Be Dropped

San Francisco, Nov. 15 —(AP)— The war shattered another precedent in the sports world today and will be no East-West football game in the Rose Bowl Jan. 1.

Instead, twice-beaten University of Southern California and undefeated University of Washington will make it an all-western affair with the Pacific coast conference championship at stake.

A special committee of the coast conference yesterday picked Washington's virtually untried but apparently powerful Huskies to oppose the fast-flying Trojans, winners of the southern half of the war-split conference title, in Pasadena New Year's Day.

The committee said it had "expressed in full the possibility of playing a game of traditional Eastwest character but from all points of view, including the military, the Washington - Southern California game was the most desirable and practicable under present war conditions."

Senate Group Goes to Bat for Baseball

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP) Professional baseball is "absolutely essential" to civilian and military morale, Senator Lucas (D-Ill) said today in pointing out the sport is making valuable contributions to the war effort while using an "infinite simal" part of the nation's manpower.

"My sincere hope is that nothing will be done by any agency of the government which will in any way disturb the continuation of this great American institution," Lucas said in an address prepared for radio delivery.

Baseball contributions to war funds total $2,128,698, he declared, and admission taxes paid the government through the National American Leagues for the 1942 and 1943 seasons amounted to $2,289,702.

Sales of war bonds and stamps in drives sponsored by baseball interests netted $1,622,203,255, he said, and the baseball equipment fund raised $250,814 to purchase sports equipment for men in the armed forces.

Citing figures he said were obtained from President Ford Pyle of the National League, Lucas gave this breakdown of the manpower setup in the senior circuit:

Players in the services, 151 (as of Oct. 15, 1943) players on the 1944 reserve list, 253.

Of the latter group, he said, 83 are pre-Pearl Harbor draftees, 31 are classified 4-F in the draft, 20 are over 38 years old, 21 over 30, 31 are post-Pearl Harbor fathers, three are aliens and two are under draft age. Eleven have married men with children. Twenty-one players have been reclassified 1-A and 10 already have been ordered to report for induction examinations.

Lucas said American League figures on manpower and draft were not available to him for report but believed they would be "very similar" to those of the National circuit.

The senator said both major leagues have reduced their travel to a minimum and could carry on to the satisfaction of the Office of Defense Transportation.

Irish, Seahawks Top Nation's Grid List

New York, Nov. 15 (AP) There was no change last week in the list of the nation's unbeaten and untied football teams that have won three or more games. SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Bert S. Patterson, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Columnist

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)— Figskin Post-Mortem — It probably was the grand climax of an unusual season Saturday when Texas U. actually sent in the water boy — four-foot, 11-inch Billy Andrews — to kick a couple of extra points against T.C.U. . . . Up to last week there hadn't been as many oddities on the field as you might expect in a season when colleges officially dropped football, then came back with "informal" teams, when some players turned up on two or three different teams through navy transfers, when assistant managers were pressed into service, when colleges like Columbia had stars of All-America caliber right hand by ineligible.

Gridiron Gremlins

North Carolina and Army scored all important points when their "opponents" forward pass attempts from behind the goal line were grounded in the end zone for safeties . . . One of these season would be enough . . . Pete Kmetovic had to recruit officials from the stands for its game with Oregon when the men assigned were late in arriving . . . And Ohio State's players had to go to the trouble of the dressing room to kick the field goals from President Ford's box of the National League, Lucas gave this breakdown of the manpower setup in the senior circuit:

Players in the services, 151 (as of Oct. 15, 1943) players on the 1944 reserve list, 253.

Of the latter group, he said, 83 are pre-Pearl Harbor draftees, 31 are classified 4-F in the draft, 20 are over 38 years old, 21 over 30, 31 are post-Pearl Harbor fathers, three are aliens and two are under draft age. Eleven have married men with children. Twenty-one players have been reclassified 1-A and 10 already have been ordered to report for induction examinations.

Lucas said American League figures on manpower and draft were not available to him for report but believed they would be "very similar" to those of the National circuit.

The senator said both major leagues have reduced their travel to a minimum and could carry on to the satisfaction of the Office of Defense Transportation.

Higher Authority

When some one asked Grasso Neale, rough and ready coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, if he never ran on the field to dispute decisions like the one which cost Neale replied: "I'd like to, but I've been ordered to remain on the sidelines." . . . Another pro professional coach whose such orders came from Commissioner Bert Bell and replied: "My wife."

Monday Matinee

The war plant that employs Indianans' 1-A draft classes to appeal the ball player's 1-A draft classification because "toolmakers are hard to find" . . . Of the 200 college outfielders, but either way Hockett likely won't be playing next season . . . Remigio Saavedra, the Argentine bike rider who collected 135 points from only 56 laps by "windbreaker" car in motion. . . . Paid them by scoring laps, not by mile non-stop trip in a little under 18 hours . . . The Rangers' Frank Boucher explains that he is in addition to play hockey at the age of 46 because the return from the one last summer he had to do the work himself . . . The Army team sat in on yesterday's Giants-Bears fiasco to see how the "T" formation should be worked — and the boys probably decided it's easier to become generals than Bears.

No Sale

The other day Ford Frick, National League president, tried to put over a fast one on Brooklyn's Branch Rickey by suggesting that they let a hat on the football game on their old colleges, Depauw and Ohio Wesleyan . . . Showing that his mind isn't always on baseball, Rickey shot back: "No you don't. I read the papers, too." . . . Depauw, if you haven't noticed, has the National's highest grid scores! In Bob Steuber and a flock of other navy trainees who have helped Bob tie up the touchdowns.

Johnny Frazee, former outfielder with the Reds' Tucson, Ariz., farm club, has returned to the New Orleans Naval Armed Guard Center after serving ten months as gun captain on a merchantman that delivered a highly explosive cargo during the Sicily invasion. Ben Goldberg reports that the Dodgers and Notre Dame still have an interest among the marines in the South Pacific . . . Preving marines are just like the rest of us.

Air Corps Is Believed Place for Luckman

By SID FEDER

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)— Sid Luckman, the ex-Columbia gridiron gem enlisted in the merchant marine, but off his latest job of dumping football bucks-busters, it may be that he's picked the wrong branch of Uncle Sam's service to strut his stuff.

The way he tore the record books to shreds yesterday with an all-time record aerial circus consisting of seven touchdown passes and 433 yards of pitching gain against the New York Giants, one suspects that the curly Chicago Bear is a born bombardier.

Luckman isn't thinking of retiring from the game yet, as some rumors have it, for the 28-year-old ex-Lion, which him in yesterday's 56-7 win to realize the guy has the stamina to play pro ball successfully with protection from a front line that practically gives him time to read a book before having to pass.

However, the ex-Columbia ace—he's still known as "Lou Little's boy" — is figuring on trading in his shoulder pads for that merchant marine uniform right after the season ends. And since he's 27 now, Sid believes the war may last too long to permit him to come back.

YBMA to Give Banquet for Bobcat Squad

The Young Business Men's Association will entertain Coach Foy Hammons and members of the Bobcat squad Wednesday night with an appreciation banquet at Hotel Barlow at 7:30 p. m.

The largest squad ever to report all year the season started is expected to be on hand. Although the Bobcats have frequently been defeated the record shows most of the lossesy in the season opening games. Improving steadily, the Bobcats in the last five games have had one, tied one and won three. Proof that they are a better team was shown last Friday night when Hope downed Magnolia 13-0, after being defeated by the Panthers 13-6 earlier in the season.

This week the Hope eleven journeys to Nashville for a game with the Scrappers. The two teams in a previous contest tied 19-19.

A large number of fans, besides members of the YBMA will attend the banquet. Les Robins will serve as master of ceremonies.

Hot Springs, Pine Bluff Tied for Lead

Little Rock, Nov. 15 (AP)— The Arkansas High school conference, with the Hot Springs Trojans and Pine Bluff Zebras tied for the lead in the red hot title race, offers one of its dirdiest football programs of the season this week.

Only three loop games are on tap and one of them, Blytheville at Jonesboro, doesn't count in the standings because it will be the second meeting of the clubs this year.

The headliner, if any, will bring the lowly Russellville Cyclones to Little Rock to meet the Tigers. The other tussle sends Forrest City to Benton.

The Tigers, who tied the Zebras 6-6 Saturday to send the Pine Bluffians into a perfect tie in the standings with the Trojans, can move back into first place by beating the Cyclones. They would displace the Fort Smith Grizzlies who will be playing outside the loop against Clarksville.

Other non-conference games bring Beebe here against North Little Rock, send El Dorado to Smackover and Pine Bluff to Greenville, Miss. The Fort Smith-Clarksville and North Little Rock games will be played Thursday.

Hot Springs, whose Bud Canada is leading the scoring race with 51 points, will be after Jake Baldwin of Pine Bluff, with 81, a runnerup for individual honors, and John Hoffmon, Little Rock, third, with 68.

The army has a dental corps of 13,000 officers.

Gomel Virtually Isolated

Reds Go North to Cut Rail Line Protecting Flank

—Europe

By HENRY G. CASSIDY

Moscow, Nov. 16 (AP)— The Red Army swung sharply north along the eastern edge of the Pripet marshes today, ripping out another important section of the German communications system and covering the flank of the great Russian bulge west of Kiev.

The general line of attack shifted, at least temporarily, from the former westward thrust to a new drive to the north apparently designed to eliminate any possibility of a major German counter-attack in White Russia.

The most immediate effect of the newest turn in the campaign appeared to be severance of a railroad and highway running west from Gomel, southern anchor of the German's Dnieper-Pripet line, to Zhitomir. The strong German garrison which has been holding out in Gomel was thus virtually isolated and Red Army units driving due east of the Dnieper river appeared on the verge of falling to the victors momentarily.

Snapping of the Gomel-Kalinkovichi communications lines was accomplished by Red Army forces which broke through the enemy lines south of the Texas terminal city on southwest of that city.

Other Red army units operating 65 miles to the southwest captured the towns of Kanavichi and Buzan, respectively 40 and 30 miles northeast of the rail center of Korosten, the announcement said.

This force apparently was aiming to be pass Korosten in the general direction of Kiev; near Rechitsa in the Gomel area; and in the Semenovka and Oraha areas of the frozen north.

The German communique, broadcast immediately after the reading of a Transocean dispatch recognizing the Russian successes, curiously deprecated all the Russian gains heralded by the preparations today and pictured the battles as vast defensive successes.

Both accounts, however, agreed that some of the most violent bat-

Cotton: Orphan of War

Brother Joe Meets the Cops

In the midst of all our billion-dollar national war prosperity this is something the press services have overlooked: Panic is sweeping the rich cottonlands of eastern Arkansas.

I spent three days last week with planters, big and small, and here is the story:

1. The St. Francis river valley, with the richest land in the world, had drouth damage on the 1943 crop. Boll weevil production was 65 to 70 per cent of normal. Only exceptions: Flooded lands. On one plantation whose average cotton yield is a bale-and-a-quarter per acre, the operator planted 350 acres to corn—and got two wagonloads.

2. Farm labor is fleeing the cotton country for Chicago war plants. Agricultural draft is a dead duck either by government rule or economic circumstance. It is unable to meet the competition of war-scarred industry. Selective Service has just recently stiffened the requirements for deferment. Only farmers in better-than-bale-to-the-acre territory you can imagine what the prospect is for holding help on the farm in areas where production averages a third of a bale or less.

3. The government has abandoned cotton quotas for the coming year. This means there will be no conservation payments (commonly known as "parity") to the government except on cotton under contracts and allotments put back to wholly-owned acreage.

4. It is clear, therefore, that the government has ruled cotton a nonessential item. We have a year's supply. Because of shortages in commodities, principally food, are not rationed.

That's how Washington looks at matters. And yet, according to farmers and city economy knows that to let thousands of acres of farmland go back to wilderness cotton isn't wanted at the moment is to invite permanent damage to the soil, once broken down and not easily re-established. And the fact that cotton is in this world crisis we may need rigorous cultivation of every worth-while acre America owns.

This is the story of Joe.

Joe is one of two brothers who run a Delta plantation. State police nailed the place the other day and found Joe's brother—but Joe wasn't there. The police took out the telephone and other equipment, and then the brother spoke up. Please leave me just one telephone."

"Why?" asked the police.

"I want to call somebody," said the brother.

So he called up: "Hello, Joe; come on down here right away."

Pretty soon Joe showed in . . . he saw everything smashed . . . saw the police . . . turned to his brother and said, "What did you call me for?"

"Well," replied his brother, "I wanted to see your name in the police docket just once . . ."

Yanks Lose Some Ground to Nazis in Italian Hills

By EDWARD KENNEDY

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 16 (AP)— Powerful German attacks have driven American troops of the Fifth Army from high ground north of Venafro, Allied headquarters announced today, but the Eighth Army has built a bulkhead in the eastern sector of Italy.

The German counter-attack pushed the U. S. troops out of areas previously occupied on Monte Santa Croce above Venafro, where a Fifth Army wedge seriously threatens the enemy's powerful winter line.

In the air war, Liberators of the U. S. 15th Air Force — joined by lend-lease Liberators of the reorganized Yugoslav Air Force — smashed at Slevsis airfield at Athens yesterday, and American medium bombers hammered Kalinakki airdrome in the Athens area.

Resistance remained strong along the length of the Fifth Army front in Italy, headquarters said.

Soldiers of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery won new high ground north of Atessa — 14 miles inland from the Adriatic coast — but Fifth Army patrols made new sorties across the Sangro river line to the east flank, feeling out German strength.

Enemy elements were met near Montazzoli near the middle reaches of the Sangro.

Land operations generally were held at a near standstill by mud and bad weather as the opposing forces girded for showdown battle.

The weather also hampered intensive air activity in Italy, although some medium bombers with an assault upon a truck convoy near Ancona on the Adriatic coast.

Two Allied planes were lost in all activities.

Norway and Greece Under Air Attacks

By GLADWIN HILL

London, Nov. 16 (AP)— Bringing Hitler's ramparts under attack both in the north and the south, American bombers struck targets in Norway today after another heavy blow at Athens airfields.

The Norwegian targets were not disclosed immediately. The Nazis have built up a number of their big warships in Norway's deep fiords.

Allied headquarters in Algiers revealed simultaneously that unidentified aircraft attacked the U. S. Air Force, now trained as heavy bombers, which have been flying war in the Mediterranean theater and yesterday flew with formations of the Royal Air Force and Yugoslav Air Force on the Slevsis airfield, U. S. bombers struck at the Kalamaki airfield in the Athens region.

The Yugoslavs are Flying Liberators given them by the United States government, and they operate as a Yugoslav Air Force under their own command.

Today's attack was the second by American bombers on Norway. On July 24 a port of a heavy force hit a U-boat base and other installations at Trondheim while others wrecked an important naval plant at Herya.

The operations followed upon a renewed German air offensive against Britain with an attack for the first time in many months on southeast England and the region where American troops are reassembling for the invasion of the continent. The Nazi raiders dropped incendiaries and high explosives, causing a number of casualties and considerable damage.

The Berlin radio said Plymouth had been attacked during the night.

Residential areas were reported to have suffered most heavily, it the raid, but fires also were started in an industrial section.

Bombs likewise fell in one or two of London's outer suburbs.

It was the first enemy aerial activity over Britain since the night of Nov. 3, when a small force of raiders attacked London for the 10th night in succession, and the first attack on the southwestern coast in many weeks.

The strike against Norway followed a foray by RAF Mosquito bombers against western Germany last night after a one-night layoff. Two Mosquitos were lost, and the fighter was returning from a night offensive patrol.

WARRANTS RECEIVED

Little Rock, Nov. 15 (AP) The auditor today received warrants from State Treasurer Earl Page warrants for $60,000 principal and $17,596 due Dec. 1 on the revolving loan fund and $19,817.50 interest on the Benton hospital construction bonds issued in 1939.

It took 581,000 gallons of oil to send American bombers to their first assault on Rome and bring them back to base.

ENDORSEMENT

BE IT RESOLVED by the members of the Quorum Court of Hempstead County, Arkansas, in regular session assembled, November 15th, 1943, that

WHEREAS, Hon. Fred A. Luck as County Judge of Hempstead County, Arkansas, has served in such capacity for almost three years, and that he is to be commended for the outstanding job he has done in the battle-state-line program in which he has financed the affairs of our county, and in the building of our farm to market roads, and we as a body wish to express our thanks for the good gravel roads that we now have in Hempstead County which are a part of his administration as such County Judge, but

WHEREAS, the year of 1944 will be the year to elect officers in every county in the government, which will end the second term as County Judge for Hon. Fred A. Luck, and we as a body do hereby endorse and solicit Fred A. Luck to again run and seek the office of County Judge of Hempstead County, Arkansas, for a third term, and we therefore as a body recommend him as such candidate for the County Judge's office as an honorable, courteous, efficient officer and servant of the people of Hempstead County, and it will be to their interest to have such a capable County Judge to serve them in this world wide crisis as never before.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That as a deserved testimonial to the Hon. Fred A. Luck, as a worthy and efficient County Judge, as a token of the esteem and appreciation of the members of this Quorum Court of Hempstead County, that a copy of this endorsement be spread on the records of the Hempstead County Court.
